Have been helping to build support for the library since 1957. Their labors encouraged Library growth from the basement of the original City Hall to our present facility.

They provide financial support from membership fees and volunteer support at the Friends of the Library Annual Used Book Sale. Funds raised enable the library to stretch budget dollars and improve service.

In addition to materials and programs, they spread the library word to neighbors and other residents. This verbal and moral support keeps the light of library recognition burning bright in the community of Madison Heights.
